Recruiting Officer

Bending Spoons

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am a highly motivated junior software engineer, and I am particularly drawn to this role because it offers a clear path for growth and a chance to tackle challenging, real-world problems. My specialization in React, Django, and Django REST Framework (DRF) aligns perfectly with the full-stack nature of modern software development. I am passionate about building robust, scalable applications from the ground up, and I believe my skills in AWS and Docker provide a strong foundation for managing infrastructure and ensuring smooth deployment. This role represents an opportunity to apply my technical expertise while continuing to learn from a team of experienced engineers.

Bending Spoons stands out as an ideal place for me because of its reputation for impact-driven innovation. Your focus on creating products that are used and loved by millions of people is incredibly inspiring. The company culture, with its emphasis on autonomy, excellence, and a data-driven approach, is exactly the environment in which I thrive. I am eager to contribute to a company that values high standards and provides the resources and support necessary to build exceptional products. The opportunity to work in a dynamic, international setting (Milan, London, or remote) is also a significant draw.

My expertise in React allows me to build intuitive and responsive user interfaces, while my backend skills in Django and DRF ensure that the APIs are clean, efficient, and secure. This full-stack proficiency means I can contribute across the entire development lifecycle. My experience with AWS gives me a practical understanding of cloud services, and my proficiency with Docker enables me to work within a modern, containerized workflow. I am a dedicated problem-solver who is not afraid to take ownership of tasks. I am a collaborative team player, and I am confident that my skills and enthusiasm would make me a valuable addition to the Bending Spoons team.
